MIDLAND TRAIL MAY NOT

BE OFFICIALLY SELECTED

President Ellison Says It Is All Pure Jealousy.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 7.—As a result of the failure of Utah officials to construct a proper road from Grand Junction to Salt Lake, as it is charged, Colorado may lose the proposed link of the Lincoln transcontinental highway, which was to run through this state over the Midland trail. In order to take action before it is too late, a meeting of the Midland Trail association has been called here for next Thursday.

C. L. Newcomb, Jr., who made the trip with the Indiana tourists from Denver to Salt Lake, reports that while the road was in excellent condition in Colorado it was a poor excuse for a highway in Utah and that the Indiana tourists had difficulty in getting through to Salt Lake. Letters have been sent to the Utah governor and the Utah highway commission demanding that some definite action be taken on this road. The Denver men think the Utah people should give a definite statement as to what they intend to do.

There is considerable opposition to the road from Grand Junction in favor of the Rifle (Colo.) and Vernal (Utah) route. It is stated that Utah is not prepared to spend the large sums that would be necessary to put the road in good shape. It is also contended that it passes through some of the most desolate country in the West, and that tourists would refuse to travel over it.

"Jealousy," Says Ellison.

"I can see the hands of Ogden and Evanston, Wyo., in this," said W. H. Ellison of Salt Lake, president of the Utah Midland Trail association, after reading the above dispatch. "Those towns, and some others, it seems to me, would rather see no highway at all if it didn't come through their backyards. But it doesn't scare us a bit. You can say for us that the transcontinental highway is built it will come over the Midland trail.

"I had the best chance to learn the feelings of Fisher and the Indians who took the trip mentioned, and I heard no such sentiments expressed as are ascribed to Newcomb. The Indians expected desert. The roads were newly graded and could not be boulevards as yet. The bulk of the Indians knew this and did not complain. As for Newcomb, he had a small-powered car and had considerable trouble. We offered him a tow once. Newcomb later went to Ogden and then to Evanston, where the advocates of the Overland trail got in their work. That's all there is to that.

"I had a long interview with E. R. Morgan, the state road engineer, last Tuesday. He said the road commission intended to keep the present road open and improve it, even without regard to the transcontinental highway. It is the intention of the road commission, I believe, to keep the road open all this season and in the fall and winter to investigate, if possible, for a better location. If it is not found, the old road stays. As for its present condition, W. D. Rabele says a man came through today without trouble.

"The whole thing is petty politics. Southern Utah is angling for the transcontinental highway also. Every locality is. And the politics will keep up till the highway is finally completed as a boulevard, and probably after that, even."

AN "ACRE-FOOT."

An "acre-foot" of water is equivalent to 43,560 cubic feet and is the quantity required to cover an acre to the depth of one foot. The term is commonly used in connection with storage for irrigation.

UNCOVER GRAY SANDSTONE OF A SUPERIOR COLOR

The Knight silica sandstone quarries in Spring Canyon, near Helper, according to reports, have uncovered a gray sandstone of 94 per cent silica and of a color and texture said to be superior to the Bedford sandstone, of which the front of the Newhouses and Boston buildings at Salt Lake City were constructed.
